Electives

A number of elective courses have been developed to serve the Master of Architecture program. Students are not limited to taking an architecture elective. Students may complete any elective offered for graduate study at the university. We encourage cross-disciplinary study in areas of interest relevant to the thesis topic selected by the student.

Electives shown here are offered regularly but not every semester or academic year. Check the Schedule of Classes to see which electives are offered in a given semester.

- ARC 502-3: Architecture Seminar
- ARC 503-3: Environmental Behavior Studies in
- ARC 531-3: Seminar: Architectural
- ARC 571-3: Architectural Visualization
- PSAS 480-3: Designing Outdoor Spaces
- ANTH 410K-3: Ecological Anthropology

*ARC 502 may be taken as a means of covering specialized instruction in architecture. For example, some students have recently completed studies in Color Theory in Architecture, Architectural Photography, and Furniture Design by taking ARC 502 Seminar.
